

In conjunction with Holocaust Memorial Day:

a save dale farm infonight

The UK's largest Traveller site, Dale Farm, is under imminent threat of eviction. The Tory Basildon council want to force half of the one thousand residents out of Essex.

Traveller communities always experience systemic persecution, and now the Council is exploiting the rise of anti-migrant racism to mount the largest eviction in recent UK history, at a cost of £10 million of public money. Considering the rhetoric around the current financial situation it is clear that this is an ideologically-driven attack against an already marginalised community.

On Holocaust memorial Day, we will be remembering persecutions of the past as well as the present. We invite you to find out about the situation and how you can get involved, from people both living at and supporting Dale Farm.
